FAILURE FACED BY THE GREAT POWERS

PROBLEM OF CRUISERS IS THE BONE OF CONTENTION

Great Britain Holds Out To Obtain Seventy Vessels, While Japan Suggests Ten Is Right Number—United States Proposes To Fix Tonnage Total and Allow Nations To Decide Upon Class—Gibson Makes Plea For Adjustment.

The men who represent the United States, Great Britain and Japan explained before a plenary session of the Tripartite Naval conference the viewpoints of their countries of the cruiser problem and when all was said, with firmness and good temper, the conference was adjourned to meet at the call of the secretary.

No private meetings of plenipotentiaries have been arranged, and the general opinion in Geneva is that if the delegates do not succeed in breaking the back of the cruiser program within the next week, the conference inevitably will have to be terminated with failure written on its register.

Admiral Earl Jellicoe and W. C. Bridgeman, first Lord of the Admiralty, spoke for Great Britain.

Hugh S. Gibson set forth the attitude of the United States, while Viscount Ishli made the specific proposal that the number of 10,000 cruisers for the United States and Great Britain be limited to ten, and that the limit for Japan be fixed at seven or less.

Mr. Gibson gave assurance that if the proposals of Great Britain and Japan could be reconciled, American acceptance would be certain, and thus an agreement would be possible.

The American pleaded for an agreement among the three powers on the ground that mutual confidence and the feeling of security to be derived from an agreement would have more value than guns and ships.

Admiral Jellicoe argued that Great Britain must have at least 70 cruisers to protect its lines of communication within the empire to keep off the raiders should war again arise.

Mr. Gibson, speaking extemporaneously, declared that he did not wish to controvert anything said by the distinguished authority, Jellicoe, but the American delegation had serious misgivings in regard to preparing in time of peace for all possible war contingencies.

Moreover, he contended, this same duty of hunting down commerce raiders might fall to the lot of any of the three navies in wartime, and if they all insisted in peace time on building up their ships in order to perform this duty, it would effectively shut the door to real limitation.

Expressing confidence that there was no thought of conflict between them, Mr. Gibson believed that each country could be left free within a carefully restricted tonnage limit to build in each class as it might see fit.

"For our part," he said "we have no desire to question the right of others to choose the type of vessels that they desire within the general limitation fixed by the treaty.

Mr. Gibson indicated that the American delegation was prepared to consider in a preliminary way the latest British proposal after an agreement had been reached on the other problems, and was prepared also to suggest that the conference to be held at Washington in 1931 be called early in the year, rather than August 17.

AIROPLANE DAMAGED.

The airplane owned by Arthur Phillips Jr., was hit by the storm Thursday afternoon and was carried away from it mooring in the Hanley field on the Northridge road. It was carried over several adjoining fields and the wings were badly torn, the propeller broken and the fuselage damaged to some extent.

Mr. Phillips will repair the damage and will get parts from Dayton.

GETS MORE INCOME

Lady Dunsford, the former Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, who has had her income raised by a decision at Newark, N. J., of Vice Chancellor Backes. Permission was granted her to convert securities comprising a $1,500,000 trust fund from her husband's estate into securities paying more than 3½ per cent interest.

Bees Quit Aged Queen for a Younger One

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Dr. Cyrus King, head of the biological department of Erasmus Hall high school, has begun an investigation of an apian mystery developed by the desertion of their hive and queen by a swarm of the school's bees that flew from the apiary on the roof to the branch of a near-by tree.

Every bee left the hive. They weighted the branch to the ground and some, not content with vagrancy, stung curious persons who went near them.

Doctor King said he suspected the bees of transferring their devotion to a younger and more interesting queen. He said he would try to verify this and if it were true either re-establish the old queen or accept the new one, provided she would remain at home and not lead her subjects on more excursions.

Bell Hopping Made

Fine Art in London

London.—London bellboys must be discretion itself to hold their jobs. They are trained to give a subdued cough whenever they approach a lady and gentleman holding a private conversation. Even the art of properly knocking on a door is practiced assiduously under the sharp eyes of their captains. The correct summons is two short knocks, the hand always being gloved.

Four pairs of white gloves a day are donned, and two white waistcoats are worn every evening whether the first is soiled or not. Well-oiled hair has to be parted exactly in the middle, gloves must never be unbuttoned and to be caught with hands in pockets means dismissal.

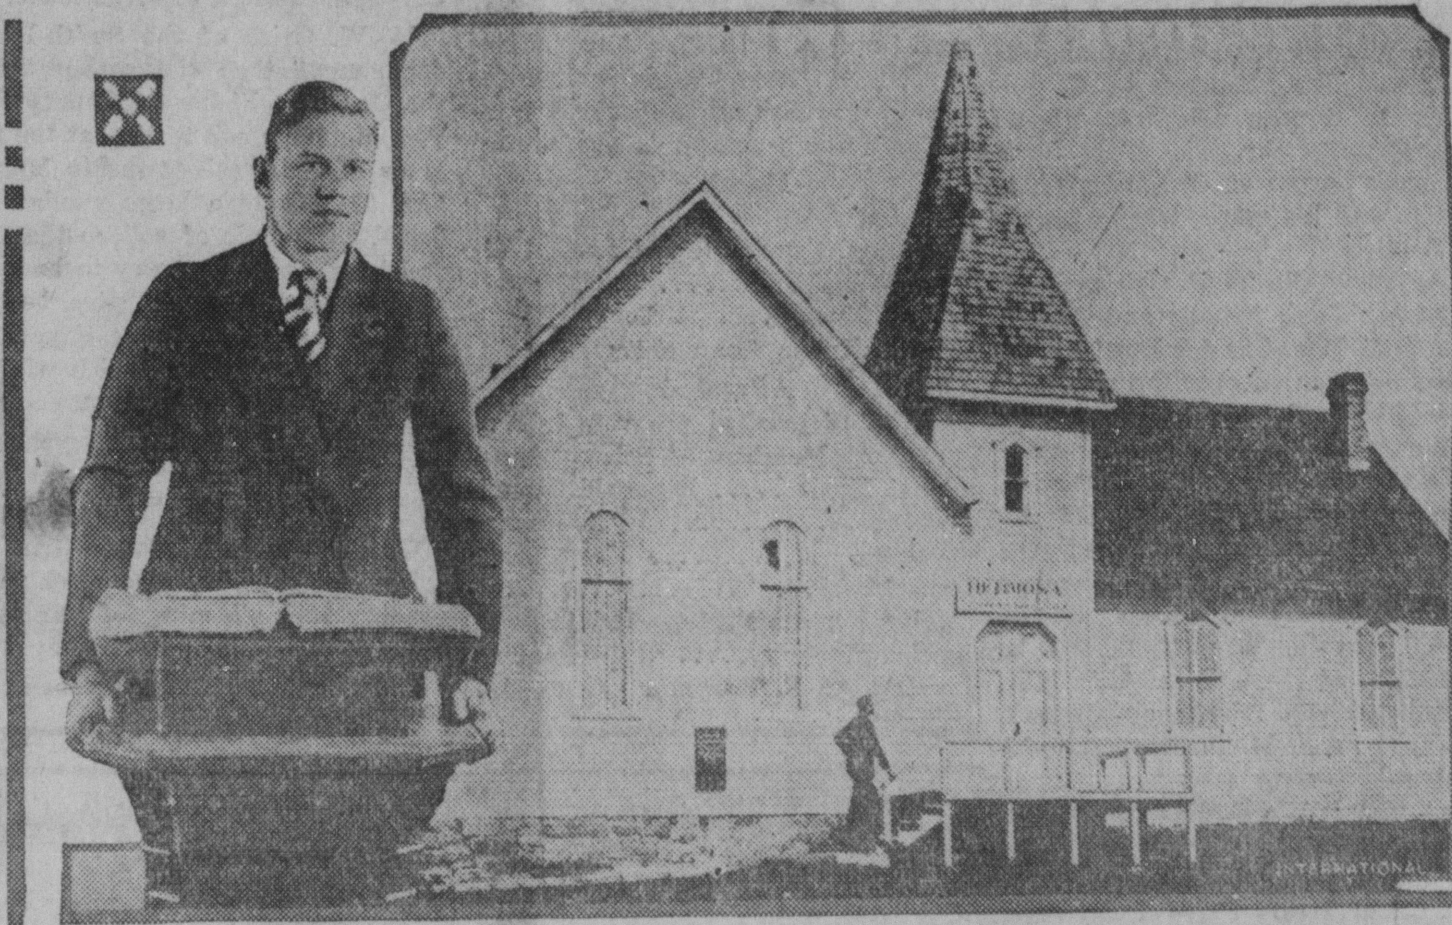

Fight It Out

Trenton, N. J.—Any two convicts in the state prison who dislike each other are to be put in a ring with gloves and have the fight taken out of themselves in two-minute rounds.

Designed White House

The designer of the White House was James Hoban, born in Ireland about 1758.

President's Summer Church and Young Pastor

ANOTHER ONE IS MENTIONED FOR GOVERNOR

Master of National Grange May Throw His Hat in the Ring For the Office.

L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange and former master of the State Grange and director of agriculture, has returned to Columbus after a swing thruout a good share of the entire country.

His coming back has aroused a large amount of discussion as to whether he would not be a most acceptable candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1928. This has gone to the extent that a meeting of well known members of his party was held to discuss his candidacy and it went so far that a group of friends waited upon him and urged he immediately announce his candidacy. This he refused to do committing himself no further than to admit the nomination would not be distasteful.

Talking about Taber is no new thing. He has been prominently mentioned in both the two last primary campaigns but refused on the ground he did not feel the opportune time had come and his work was of such a character he did not feel free to break any and assume the duties of making a fight at the primaries and later, if nominated, in the campaign for election. This time his friends say no such reason can be advanced with effect and they are insistent he enter the field and openly declare himself.

One of the strongest arguments advanced in his behalf is his popularity among the farmers and the hold he would have among the different organizations of rural dwellers. Since there seems to be but little question that the Democrats will nominate Martin L. Davey, of Kent, National representative from the 14th Congressional district, and he is admitted to have a strong rural following, it is argued that Taber more than any other men, among the Republicans, could overcome this. Or should Governor Donahey change his mind and decide to be a candidate again it is believed Taber could largely cut into the strength the governor has always shown in the rural districts.

Taber last year was a delegate to a convention held in Europe, to study the rural conditions of the world. This is used in his favor as having given him a broader understanding of economic conditions as they affect the farmer than any other Republican who has been nominated.

It needs but his endorsement to start a sturdy campaign in which might bring him the Republican nomination.

Yet He Failed

Cracow, Poland.—Stanislas Schwarc, chief of the political police, was ordered to run down a gang of counterfeiters. He failed. Other detectives were put on the job. They reported Schwarc was head of the gang.

Got Relief

Budapest.—Jail promised such a relief from his wife's company that Andreas Kurdi passed himself off as his son, served three months in prison and asked to stay longer.

They were found guilty as charged and each was given a fine of $5 and costs.

Show Dog Vaccination Stamping Out Rabies

Paris.—Vaccination of dogs has done much to stamp out rabies, it was agreed by scientists attending a recent rabies congress at the Pasteur institute. Japan, Italy and the United States, it was said, had vaccinated several hundred thousand dogs. The results have shown that dogs so treated developed rabies in only a small percentage of the cases. This vaccination, however, is said to give only temporary protection. It must be repeated every year to be effective.

Compose, Jacket Suit Featured This Season

The compose or jacket suit is a distinct feature of this season. Trim tailors with dark jackets and skirt of contrasting materials are much in the limelight for daytime wear. Gwen Lee, the motion picture star, in "Heaven and Earth," wears the attractive outfit here shown, and in which natural kasha, with a jacket of black velvet are most prominent.

Standardization Fad May Hit Foot and Footwear

Women's feet are getting larger. For generations the average size of the foot of the American woman has been 4B. But the modern girl has outgrown this standard, according to figures published by the Woman's Home Companion, and the average size at present is nearly half an inch longer and a full size wider than that of a brief decade ago.

Athletics, dancing and much walking on pavements are advanced as the principal reasons for the increasing size of the feminine foot.

Some accompanying information on footwear includes the fact that women's feet show less variety in size than formerly. Standardization is apparently in process of evolution. A great industrialist, asked how he would apply modern methods of mass production to shoes, replied that he would make only one style and only one size—the average—and compel all persons with feet larger or smaller than the average to go elsewhere and pay higher prices. Women with the particularly dainty feet and men with particularly big ones may therefore some day have to go to the custom bootmaker, and, as the industrialist waggishly observes, "foot the bill as gracefully as possible."

On the other hand, this survey of feminine feet and footwear shows that hosiery is defying the standardizer. One large company which in 1920 carried 480 varieties—styles, colors and sizes—of stockings now has to carry 6,000, because fashion has decreed a profusion of colors. The latest idea, just being launched, is that instead of selling hose by the pair, they shall be sold in packages of three stockings to match—the "spare" is to be used in case of runs, rips or splashes. This is being advanced as an economy measure, like the extra pair of pants with father's suit. It was not necessary, however, in the old days when all the hosiery in a woman's wardrobe was black and interchangeable.

Buttons Must Work on Latest Spring Attire

Every button—and there are many—on the new spring things, must have its buttonhole and a part to play in actually fastening the dress. Rows of buttons are seen on coats and dresses but never as mere ornaments. They must serve some purpose to be smart.

Matching buttons and buckles are put out by Paris trimming houses for spring use. The buckle is almost as important as the button in the dress-maker's scheme of closing things.

Contrast in Slippers of Satin

A new note in fashion is revealed in slippers of satin to match the frock, but with contrast introduced in a double loop of inch-wide velvet ribbon which serves for a buckle. The contrast is always striking, such as violet and green, coral and blue, or purple and violet.

New Evening Coats

The evening coat is the latest garment to grow shorter, and Paris now says "three-quarters is the length." Made of metal brocades in very small geometrical patterns or unobtrusive stripes, the coats of the spring collections often hang free from the wearer in a graceful effect.

Suits of Jersey

For practical purposes as well as chic, few fashions are more satisfactory than a man-tailored suit of jersey in the smart new spring colors. The jacket is short and trim, as is the skirt, and the tailored blouse is of small patterned printed silk with a chemise front.

LOANS UP TO $500

It's no trouble at all to "meet expenses—most of us "meet" them everywhere we turn. That fact is a man has a hard time taking a stroll down the street these days without having to dodge in somewhere in an attempt to evade the doctor or grocer—only to run smash into the coal man.

All of us mean well—as well as we can—but a willing spirit does not settle bills. That requires cash.

Study of Mosaic

The study of the mysterious plant disease called mosaic, from the mottled character of the infected leaves, may be greatly enhanced by the use of the ultramicroscope designed by J. E. Barnard, the famous English microscopist. It was he who, with Doctor Gye, claims to have isolated the germ of cancer through the use of this instrument.

Sometimes, it may be, a picnic is got up for the pleasure of not inviting somebody.

Lost—a Train!

Some people are incredibly careless. The other day we heard of a man who mislaid an elephant; now we hear of some one who lost a railway train! Both these interesting items of lost property have been recovered.

The elephant had merely gone for a stroll down a lonely lane, but the train had been stolen by Polish railway officials. It was made up of 42 trucks of coal when it left Chorzaw, in Upper Silesia, on February 24, but the coal was delivered to accomplices at various towns, where it was sold. The engine and 42 trucks were not so easily disposed of, and after a police hunt the truth has just come out.

Needs Special Climate

The forage plant, serradella, is largely grown in Germany, but not used in the United States. It is grown for hay and for soil improvement. It requires cool weather and a great deal of moisture for growing. Experiments in the United States have shown that it will do fairly well in Florida, except during cool spells when it winter-kills.

Providence, R. I.—Prof. Edmund B. de La Barre of Brown university has found human bones he believes to be 1,000 years old at Assonet Neck, Mass. The bones, which are bits of human skull and leg bones, were buried under a thick layer of peat at a spot covered by water at high tide, and were grouped in an area scarcely a foot in radius. The bones, Prof. de La Barre believes, may have been preserved from some prehistoric cremation, or may have been in the stomach of some predatory animal when it died.

DISSENTING OPINION OF F. B. MAULLAR

In Fixing Value of Portsmouth Gas Company, Says It is Rated Too Low.

In a dissenting opinion Frank B. Maullar, Republican member of the utilities commission, Thursday said he thought final valuation of the property of the Portsmouth Gas Co., far ratemaking purposes should have been fixed at $656,180.44 instead of $594,221.03.

The majority of the commission, comprised of William Klinger and James W. Huffman, Democrats, Wednesday fixed the valuation at the latter figure.

Mr. Maullar said the valuation fixed by the majority is too low inasmuch as it did not take into consideration any "going concern value." This value, he said "is inherent in such a plant."

The city of Portsmouth, in protesting a tentative valuation of $599,441.02 previously set, asked for a lower valuation and the gas company simultaneously sought a higher valuation upon which to fix the rates which it proposes to charge consumers.

Commissioner James W. Huffman, explaining the action of the majority of the commission, declared an allowance for going concern value was "reflected" in the amount fixed as total valuation.

"The majority of the commission," Mr. Huffman said, "recognizes going concern value. The supreme court of the United States has said it is not error for a commission to allow going concern value, but it also has said that it is discretionary with the commission as to the amount.

"In this case, in fixing the final value, the majority of the commission did not add any specific amount for going concern value was fully reflected in amounts allowed for such items as physical property, overhead and the like."

Woman's Word Trusted

Among the Abyssinians a woman's word is assumed to be inviolate.

AMUSEMENTS

Given two young married couples one husband too busy being a successful doctor to devote time to his wife and one wife too busy being a successful lawyer to devote time to her husband. Then have the neglected pair meet as the principals in a thrilling traffic accident at a busy corner.

There you have the ingredients of as delightful a screen comedy as has ever been shown at the Met theater; the Florence Vidor starring vehicle, "The World at Her Feet," which opened there yesterday.

Miss Vidor, in all her brunette loveliness as first the efficient attorney, and next the charming wife, using her law-sharpened wits to win back her mate gives one of the finest performances of her career. She brings to the role a sympathy of treatment, a knowledge of the requirements of farce comedy and a stately grace that are enchanting. Arnold Kent, the neglected husband, gives new evidence of why Paramount holds him on contract as a leading man. Margaret Quimby, William Austin and Richard Tucker in the supporting cast, are ideal.

"The World at Her Feet" was directed by Luther Reed, who so successfully guided Adolphe Menjou thru "The Ace of Cads" and "Evening Clothes" both of them distinct hits. The story is an adaptation by Doris Anderson of the French stage play, "Lawyer Bolbec and Her Husband." Louise Long wrote the continuity.

FEW YEARS SHY

The scientist says that the woman of sixty has a 20 per cent better brain than a man of the same age. But, for heaven's sake, don't let her know it. One of the reasons why she falls to get the glory is that she never gets that old.—Los Angeles Times.

WORKER SURVIVES
2300 VOLT SHOCK

Portsmouth, July 13.—Twenty-three hundred volts of electricity passed through the body of Alfred Apel, an electrician in the local Norfolk & Western shops, and he lives to tell the experience.

Apel was unconscious for more than a half hour and only heroic efforts of fellow workmen saved his life. They applied powerful restoratives and succeeded in reviving Apel through artificial respiration.

Physicians reported he would recover.

WORMS AND FISHES
CAN SOLVE PUZZLES

New Psychology Discovers Some Surprising Facts About Lowest Animals.

Perhaps you imagine that worms cannot learn. But a common earthworm actually has been trained by Professor Robert M. Yerkes at Harvard University to follow a given pathway in a maze. The worm was taught to follow the path always to the right by the simple method of penalizing left turns by administering a mild electric shock. Crabs, snails, crayfish, turtles, and fishes all can learn mazes with one or two blind alleys, and the cockroach easily learns a maze of three or four.

These surprising facts have been revealed through experiments in the comparatively new science of animal psychology. Like the older sciences, it has set up its laboratories, developed its special apparatus, and perfected its technique of measurement. It has already discovered more remarkable facts about the behavior of the lower animals than the field naturalist ever dreamed of, writes Prescott Lecky in the August Popular Science Monthly.

For example, Prof. Norman Triplett, of the Kansas State Normal School, was wondering not long ago whether a fish, an animal well down toward the bottom of the evolutionary scale, could learn to control its natural desire to dine upon small minnows. Two perch were placed in a glass tank and permitted to feed on minnows for several months. Then a glass partition was slipped in, dividing the tank in two. On one side, perch; on the other side, minnows. Glass between. Smack! As the perch rushed forward they collided with the barrier full force. Undaunted they returned to the attack and butted their heads again.

The experiment was repeated every day for a month. In the meantime the fish were fed with anglerworms. Gradually they lessened their attacks, and at last gave up altogether their attempts to reach the minnows. It was then that Professor Triplett gave them a real test. He removed the partition and the perch, no longer interested in the minnows, remained peacefully on their own side, while the minnows crossed over and joined them. They swam together in peace.

Just prior to this experiment, a famous European biologist had asserted that fish could learn nothing. Now, though, it is known that all animals, even the one-celled variety, can alter their behavior to some extent, even though the change may not last permanently.

FEDERATION

Of Women's Clubs Appeals To Campers.

Spare wild flowers, shrubs and trees; they have made the place pleasant for you—leave them for others to enjoy. Don't make a campfire in the leaves or rotten wood or against a log where it may spread. Don't make a fire too close to a tree. Don't toss away burning matches or tobacco. Always scrape (toward the fire) a trench around your campfire, down to dirt. Always leave a clean camp and a dead fire.

Some fires come from lightning and some from unpreventable causes; but about 90 per cent or more are from sheer carelessness.

WOODCHOP-
PER'S YARN

After sawing through a large cedar tree stump near Revelstoke, B. C., two ranchers were amazed to discover that they had decapitated a bear. Evidence showed that bruin had entered there through a hole at the roots of the tree. Scratching the rotting wood inside, the animal released enough chips to block the hole and cut off his air supply. The body was in a rolled-up posture, suggesting that he had been attempting to turn when he died through suffocation.

of Circleville Men.

Circleville Elks' Lodge trap-shooting outfit again failed to land in the money in yesterday's final events at the Elks' National trapshoot in Cincinnati.

Among the "outsiders," the Ohio picked team won the state team title and C. L. Schwartz, of Kenton, took the handicap. The outstanding all round performer of the meet was R. R. Stevenson, of Dayton, while W. H. Hall, of Maysville, Kentucky, turned in the longest run, breaking 206 consecutive targets.

Circleville men shot as follows in the 16 yard singles in 100 attempts: S. D. Geddes, 91; Robert Immell, 93; Felix R. Caldwell, 96; O. L. Cartright, 95; J. C. Rader, 97.

In the National Handicap the following scores were turned in: S. D. Geddes, 93; O. L. Cartright, 94; J. C. Rader, 94; R. L. Immell, 86; F. R. Caldwell, 79.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Lodge won the lodge team championship of the meet; R. R. Stevenson the singles; J. D. Claypool, of Kenton, the doubles; Ohio the state team title and C. R. Schwartz, the handicap.

BED-ROOM CARS

Have Displaced the Old Pullman
Berths On Several Railroad Lines.

Columbus, July 14.—(UP.)—The Pullman berth is soon to be a thing of the past, according to prediction of railroad officials here.

The last minute bed-room car which has just been placed into use on several railroad lines is an innovation which is taking the place of the upper and lower.

All the comforts of home are found in the new de-luxe Pullman car bedrooms, including a real bed, with a deep box spring, thick comfortable mattress and a silk spread; a comfortable upholstered chair, which conceals a toilet; a lavatory with hot and cold running water; a dental faucet which disappears when not in use; a thermos bottle and glass; rack for writing paper and a drop-table.

The little two by four sleeping shelf will pass completely out of existence when the new bed-room car is perfected.

The only drawback to popular use of the bed-room car at once is the fact that it is not convenient for travel in the day time. Pullman engineers are working on a plan to make the bed fold away and enable the room to be turned into a sitting room during the day.

Until that time, the new Pullman's are being used mainly for overnight runs. On the de-luxe trains, a lounge car is attached for use during the day.

Polishing Surfaces

"Grinding" is a general term. "Lapping" is a method of grinding interior and exterior surfaces in a lathe by friction of lead cylinders or clamps supplied with oil and a fine abrasive powder. The method is used where it is necessary to obtain an exceedingly smooth and polished surface, as in the manufacture of ordnance.

HINDENBURG

Serves the German Republic
Well.

When General Paul von Hindenburg was elected President of Germany a little over two years ago there were many who believed that it heralded a Hohenzollern restoration, according to John Clayton in an article in this week's Liberty. "Instead," writes the author, "Hindenburg has proved the strongest prop of the republic. In his official capacity he has cut himself off from monarchist organizations and denied them the use of his signature in collecting funds. He has sworn a soldier's oath to support the constitution of the republic, and Germany, which believed him when he took it, believes him doubly today, after a proving time of more than two years.

"Von Hindenburg, who is eighty years old, realizes his age. He was elected for a seven-year term of office. If God is good to him, he may live through his term, but a second term is out of the question. So Hindenburg is hampered in no way by the desire for further political honors; nor does he find it necessary to regard the will of a fickle party committee which might hold his political future in its hands.

"The President has been one of the biggest factors in restoring foreign confidence in Germany's future. He still has nearly five years before him, during which time the reconstruction should be complete."

Tree Makes Starch

Tree Comes to Meet

Farmer at the Barn

Pomeroy, Ohio.—Alonso Kesterson has never believed in fairies, but now—well, consider the evidence:

Mr. Kesterson, who is past the age of believing in fairies, owns a farm just outside Pomeroy. As is a habit of farms in that vicinity, it runs mostly up and down.

Just back of the house the Kesterson farm turns sharply upward for several hundred feet. Three hundred feet up this steep clay slope stood an apple tree. Its apples were of a variety particularly prized by Mr. Kesterson and he bemoaned their inaccessibility.

"I wish that old tree was down in the barn lot," he confided to his grandson the other morning. "I like them apples special and it's gittin' too hard to climb up there."

A few minutes later the two heard a rumble, a clatter and a crackling of timbers; they turned to behold the apple tree, its roots still buried in a gigantic clod of earth fifteen or twenty feet in diameter, settling itself in the barnyard. A bare slippery expanse of clay on the hillside revealed its path. The slippery clay, softened by heavy rains, had staged a landslide for the apparent benefit of Mr. Kesterson.

The tree crashed through a fence and demolished a shed. It was in bloom at the time and now is preparing, Mr. Kesterson said, to bear a crop of apples.

STAGGERING FIRE LOSSES IN COUNTRY

Greatest Thrift Lesson is to Decide to Put a Stop to This Useless Waste.

It is no doubt true that a great amount of time, energy and money are expended unwisely or ill-advisedly in efforts to bring about improved conditions in this country. There are activities which are thoroughly laudable in their objectives, but too visionary ever to result in success. On the other hand, there are many great problems pressing for solution—many conditions demanding improvement, to which not enough public attention is given.

High in the list of the latter is the problem of meeting our growing losses of life and property thru fire. Recently compiled figures show, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, that 15,000 lives and $650,548,624 worth of property was the tribute paid by this country last year to the fire fiend. It would seem that this great loss of human life would alone be sufficient to arouse us to greater efforts of fire prevention. It is hard to imagine a nation such as ours willing to lay this great human sacrifice upon the altars of Carelessness and Indifference.

The nation would be shocked into swift and determined action by similar losses of life in any other way.

If it were possible to assemble in one colossal pile all the buildings erected last year in the great cities of Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, San Francisco, Washington and Boston and touch a match to them so that they would blaze to heaven in a greater bonfire than the world has even known, we would have a spectacular reproduction of our nation's fire losses for the year, 1926.

If all the buildings erected in the United States last year could be placed on one long thoroughfare and then a gigantic hand were to apply the torch to every tenth building facing on this highway, we would have reproduction of our annual fire losses.

Let us remember that possibly 75 per cent of this destruction of life and property is due to carelessness. It is a form of national thriftlessness. It is a tax which we as a nation choose to impose upon ourselves thru sheer lack of care. One of our greatest thrift lessons will have been learned when we decide as a nation of people to put a stop to our preventable fire losses.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sauer, formerly of this city, are expected to arrive in Chillicothe today for a visit with relatives, after a stay of six years in Korea, where they have been serving as missionaries for the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Sauer will be remembered by Circleville people as having been superintendent of the Washington township public schools for two years. Mrs. Sauer, who was Miss Marguerite Suttles, at the time was teacher of domestic science in the same schools. They were married while teaching here. Both were very active in church work in this city and will receive a glad welcome when they return here for a visit.

Both are graduates of Ohio Wesleyan university and are well known among the teachers of the state. Mr. Sauer served with the 83d division during the World war.

While in Korea he wrote a book, "Korean for Beginners" which received great praise from the press of that country.

The Sauers are bringing with them their two young sons, both of whom were born in Seoul, Korea.

NELSON SMITH DROWNED NEAR NELSONVILLE

Struck With Cramp While Bathing Near Meal Time
--Burial at Chillicothe.

Nelson Smith, salesman for the Spetnagel Hardware company and son of Mrs. Mary Smith, 398 Chestnut street, Chillicothe, was drowned in a stream near Nelsonville Wednesday evening with an attack of cramps while in bathing.

Smith was going over the Athens territory substituting for the regular salesman who was on vacation. According to his itinerary, he was to stay overnight at Athens. Evidently he decided to go to Nelsonville where his brother, Jess D. Smith, lives, and spend the night there.

At Nelsonville, Smith and his brother's wife and two children decided to go bathing after supper. From the meager information received concerning the accident, it was impossible to learn the name of the stream.

The brother's theory is that Smith got a cramp from going in swimming too close to meal time. It is understood that the older daughter of Mrs. Jess Smith undertook to save her uncle but her efforts were futile. The body was recovered by a searching party.

Smith had been with the Spetnagel Hardware company for about four years and a half and was a respected and trusted employee. He was a member of the United Commercial Travelers and was affiliated with the First Presbyterian church.

The mother of this city, and the brother, of Nelsonville, survive. The remains were brought to Chillicothe for burial.—News Advertiser.

Device Makes It Easy to Match Any Color

It is now possible to match colors by wire or radio. A new apparatus has been invented at Massachusetts Institute of Technology by which this process can be carried out so that in the manufacture of textiles or other colored products, exact reproductions of any shade can be made without possibility of visual error. Thus control of color by industries advances from dependence upon the human eye. A color specimen in a holder is placed close to a high-power electric lamp. Light is alternately reflected from it and from a block of magnesium carbonate, the whitest substance in the world. The variation of reflection from these two surfaces is registered by a photo-electric cell and transmitted in electric impulses either by wire or radio.

PROBLEM OF CRUISERS IS THE BONE OF CONTENTION

Great Britain Holds Out To Obtain Seventy Vessels, While Japan Suggests Ten Is Right Number—United States Proposes To Fix Tonnage Total and Allow Nations To Decide Upon Class—Gibson Makes Plea For Adjustment.

The men who represent the United States, Great Britain and Japan explained before a plenary session of the Tripartite Naval conference the viewpoints of their countries of the cruiser problem and when all was said, with firmness and good temper, the conference was adjourned to meet at the call of the secretary.

No private meetings of plenipotentiaries have been arranged, and the general opinion in Geneva is that if the delegates do not succeed in breaking the back of the cruiser program within the next week, the conference inevitably will have to be terminated with failure written on its register.

Admiral Earl Jellicoe and W. C. Bridgeman, first Lord of the Admiralty, spoke for Great Britain.

Hugh S. Gibson set forth the attitude of the United States, while Viscount Ishli made the specific proposal that the number of 10,000 cruisers for the United States and Great Britain be limited to ten, and that the limit for Japan be fixed at seven or less.

Mr. Gibson gave assurance that if the proposals of Great Britain and Japan could be reconciled, American acceptance would be certain, and thus an agreement would be possible.

The American pleaded for an agreement among the three powers on the ground that mutual confidence and the feeling of security to be derived from an agreement would have more value than guns and ships.

Admiral Jellicoe argued that Great Britain must have at least 70 cruisers to protect its lines of communication within the empire to keep off the raiders should war again arise.

Mr. Gibson, speaking extemporaneously, declared that he did not wish to controvert anything said by the distinguished authority, Jellicoe, but the American delegation had serious misgivings in regard to preparing in time of peace for all possible war contingencies.

Moreover, he contended, this same duty of hunting down commerce raiders might fall to the lot of any of the three navies in wartime, and if they all insisted in peace time on building up their ships in order to perform this duty, it would effectively shut the door to real limitation.

Expressing confidence that there was no thought of conflict between them, Mr. Gibson believed that each country could be left free within a carefully restricted tonnage limitation to build in each class as it might see fit.

"For our part," he said "we have no desire to question the right of others to choose the type of vessels that they desire within the general limitation fixed by the treaty.

Mr. Gibson indicated that the American delegation was prepared to consider in a preliminary way the latest British proposal after an agreement had been reached on the other problems, and was prepared also to suggest that the conference to be held at Washington in 1931 be called early in the year, rather than August 17.

AIROPLANE DAMAGED.

The airplane owned by Arthur Phillips Jr., was hit by the storm Thursday afternoon and was carried away from it mooring in the Hanley field on the Northridge road. It was carried over several adjoining fields and the wings were badly torn, the propeller broken and the fuselage damaged to some extent.

Mr. Phillips will repair the damage and will get parts from Dayton.

Bees Quit Aged Queen for a Younger One

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Dr. Cyrus King, head of the biological department of Erasmus Hall high school, has begun an investigation of an apian mystery developed by the desertion of their hive and queen by a swarm of the school's bees that flew from the apiary on the roof to the branch of a nearby tree.

Every bee left the hive. They weighted the branch to the ground and some, not content with vagrancy, stung curious persons who went near them.

Doctor King said he suspected the bees of transferring their devotion to a younger and more interesting queen. He said he would try to verify this and if it were true either re-establish the old queen or accept the new one, provided she would remain at home and not lead her subjects on more excursions.

Bell Hopping Made

Fine Art in London

London.—London bellboys must be discretion itself to hold their jobs. They are trained to give a subdued cough whenever they approach a lady and gentleman holding a private conversation. Even the art of properly knocking on a door is practiced assiduously under the sharp eyes of their captains. The correct summons is two short knocks, the hand always being gloved.

Four pairs of white gloves a day are donned, and two white waistcoats are worn every evening whether the first is soiled or not. Well-oiled hair has to be parted exactly in the middle, gloves must never be unbuttoned, and to be caught with hands in pockets means dismissal.

Compose, Jacket Suit

Featured This Season

The compose or jacket suit is a distinct feature of this season. Trim tailfours with dark jackets and skirt of contrasting materials are much in the limelight for daytime wear. Gwen Lee, the motion picture star, in "Heaven and Earth," wears the attractive outfit here shown, and in which natural kasha, with a jacket of black velvet are most prominent.

Standardization Fad May Hit Foot and Footwear

Women's feet are getting larger. For generations the average size of the foot of the American woman has been 4 1/2. But the modern girl has outgrown this standard, according to figures published by the Woman's Home Companion, and the average size at present is nearly half an inch longer and a full size wider than that of a brief decade ago.

Athletics, dancing and much walking on pavements are advanced as the principal reasons for the increasing size of the feminine foot.

Some accompanying information on footwear includes the fact that women's feet show less variety in size than formerly. Standardization is apparently in process of evolution. A great industrialist, asked how he would apply modern methods of mass production to shoes, replied that he would make only one style and only one size—the average—and compel all persons with feet larger or smaller than the average to go elsewhere and pay higher prices. Women with the particularly dainty feet and men with particularly big ones may therefore some day have to go to the custom bootmaker, and, as the industrialist waggishly observes, "foot the bill as gracefully as possible."

On the other hand, this survey of feminine feet and footwear shows that hosiery is defying the standardizer. One large company which in 1920 carried 480 varieties—styles, colors and sizes—of stockings now has to carry 6,006, because fashion has decreed a profusion of colors. The latest idea, just being launched, is that instead of selling hose by the pair, they shall be sold in packages of three stockings to match—the "spare" is to be used in case of runs, rips or splashes. This is being advanced as an economy measure, like the extra pair of pants with father's suit. It was not necessary, however, in the old days when all the hosiery in a woman's wardrobe was black and interchangeable.

Buttons Must Work on Latest Spring Attire

Every button—and there are many—on the new spring things, must have its buttonhole and a part to play in actually fastening the dress. Rows of buttons are seen on coats and dresses, but never as mere ornaments. They must serve some purpose to be smart.

Matching buttons and buckles are put out by Paris trimming houses for spring use. The buckle is almost as important as the button in the dress-maker's scheme of closing things.

Contrast in Slippers of Satin

A new note in fashion is revealed in slippers of satin to match the frock, but with contrast introduced in a double loop of inch-wide velvet ribbon which serves for a buckle. The contrast is always striking, such as violet and green, coral and blue, or purple and violet.

New Evening Coats

The evening coat is the latest garment to grow shorter, and Paris now says "three-quarters is the length." Made of metal brocades in very small geometrical patterns or unobtrusive stripes, the coats of the spring collections often hang free from the wearer in a graceful effect.

Suits of Jersey

For practical purposes as well as chic, few fashions are more satisfactory than a man-tailored suit of jersey in the smart new spring colors. The jacket is short and trim, as is the skirt, and the tailored blouse is of small patterned printed silk with a chemise front.

LOANS UP TO $500

It's no trouble at all to "meet expenses—most of us "meet" them everywhere we turn. That fact is a man has a hard time taking a stroll down the street these days without having to dodge in somewhere in an attempt to evade the doctor or grocer—only to run smash into the coal man.

All of us mean well—as well as we can—but a willing spirit does not settle bills. That requires cash.

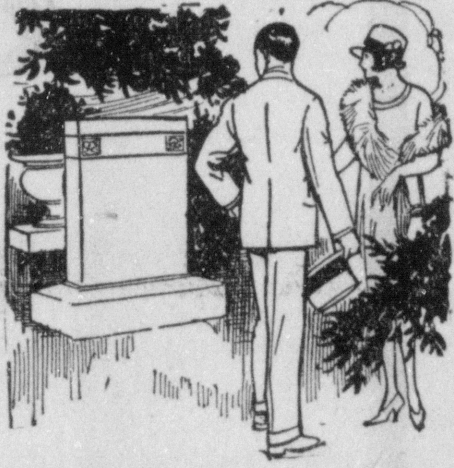

A great many folks are borrowing the necessary funds from The City Loan to cure the dodging habit. You can show your good intention in no better fashion than to come here—get the money and go pay.

The study of the mysterious plant disease called mosaic, from the mottled character of the infected leaves, may be greatly enhanced by the use of the ultramicroscope designed by J. E. Lost—a Train!

Some people are incredibly careless. The other day we heard of a man who mislaid an elephant; now we hear of some one who lost a railway train! Both these interesting items of lost property have been recovered.

The elephant had merely gone for a stroll down a lonely lane, but the train had been stolen by Polish railway officials. It was made up of 42 trucks of coal when it left Chorzaw, in Upper Silesia, on February 24, but the coal was delivered to accomplices at various towns, where it was sold. The engine and 42 trucks were not so easily disposed of, and after a police hunt the truth has just come out.

Mr. Whiteside retired from an active life several years ago. He was a carpenter and laborer. For a number of years he resided in Columbus, where he was connected with the street railway company.

There are no surviving near relatives. One daughter died in infancy and all members of his immediate family have passed on.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday afternoon at the home with Rev. F. E. Roberts, of Gloucester, former pastor of the Church of Christ in charge of the services. Interment in the Darbyville cemetery.

Needs Special Climate

The forage plant, serradella, is largely grown in Germany, but not used in the United States. It is grown for hay and for soil improvement. It requires cool weather and a great deal of moisture for growing. Experiments in the United States have shown that it will do fairly well in Florida, except during cool spells when it winter-kills.

Providence, R. I.—Prof. Edmund B. de La Barre of Brown university has found human bones he believes to be 1,000 years old at Assonet Neck, Mass. The bones, which are bits of human skull and leg bones, were buried under a thick layer of peat at a spot covered by water at high tide, and were grouped in an area scarcely a foot in radius. The bones, Prof. de La Barre believes, may have been preserved from some prehistoric cremation, or may have been in the stomach of some predatory animal when it died.

DISSENTING OPINION OF F. B. MAULLAR

In Fixing Value of Portsmouth Gas Company, Says It is Rated Too Low.

In a dissenting opinion Frank B. Maullar, Republican member of the utilities commission, Thursday said he thought final valuation of the property of the Portsmouth Gas Co., far ratemaking purposes should have been fixed at $656,180.44 instead of $594,221.03.

The majority of the commission, comprised of William Klinger and James W. Huffman, Democrats, Wednesday fixed the valuation at the latter figure.

Mr. Maullar said the valuation fixed by the majority is too low inasmuch as it did not take into consideration any "going concern value." This value, he said "is inherent in such a plant."

The city of Portsmouth, in protesting a tentative valuation of $599,441.02 previously set, asked for a lower valuation and the gas company simultaneously sought a higher valuation upon which to fix the rates which it proposes to charge consumers.

Commissioner James W. Huffman, explaining the action of the majority of the commission, declared an allowance for going concern value was "reflected" in the amount fixed as total valuation.

"The majority of the commission," Mr. Huffman said, "recognizes going concern value. The supreme court of the United States has said it is not error for a commission to allow going concern value, but it also has said that it is discretionary with the commission as to the amount."

"In this case, in fixing the final value, the majority of the commission did not add any specific amount for going concern value was fully reflected in amounts allowed for such items as physical property, overhead and the like."

AMUSEMENTS

Given two young married couples one husband too busy being a successful doctor to devote time to his wife and one wife too busy being a successful lawyer to devote time to her husband. Then have the neglected pair meet as the principals in a thrilling traffic accident at a busy corner.

There you have the ingredients of as delightful a screen comedy as has ever been shown at the Met theater; the Florence Vidor starring vehicle, "The World at Her Feet," which opened there yesterday.

Miss Vidor, in all her brunette loveliness as first the efficient attorney, and next the charming wife, using her law-sharpened wits to win back her mate gives one of the finest performances of her career. She brings to the role a sympathy of treatment, a knowledge of the requirements of farce comedy and a stately grace that are enchanting. Arnold Kent, the neglected husband, gives new evidence of why Paramount holds him on contract as a leading man. Margaret Quimby, William Austin and Richard Tucker in the supporting cast, are ideal.

"The World at Her Feet" was directed by Luther Reed, who so successfully guided Adolphe Menjou thru "The Ace of Cads" and "Evening Clothes" both of them distinct hits. The story is an adaptation by Doris Anderson of the French stage play, "Lawyer Bolbec and Her Husband." Louise Long wrote the continuity.

How Coads Can Be Thin;

Can Eat on $2.50 a Week

Ithaca, N. Y.—The high cost of living need hold no terror for the modern college girl. A class studying foods at the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell university found that the coed can feed herself on $2.50 a week.

This cost figure was declared the smallest sum which would supply the 2,200 calories required by a girl of average size carrying on everyday college studies and activities. In order to do it, however, she must be her own cook and literally know her vegetables. She must also know the cheapest produce markets.

No mention is made of the free meals she may have, so it is expected that the ultra-economical coed following this "food prescription" will have 21 meals at her regular eating place.

WORMS AND FISHES
CAN SOLVE PUZZLES

New Psychology Discovers Some Surprising Facts About Lowest Animals.

Perhaps you imagine that worms cannot learn. But a common earthworm actually has been trained by Professor Robert M. Yerkes at Harvard University to follow a given pathway in a maze. The worm was taught to follow the path always to the right by the simple method of penalizing left turns by administering a mild electric shock. Crabs, snails, crayfish, turtles, and fishes all can learn mazes with one or two blind alleys, and the cockroach easily learns a maze of three or four.

These surprising facts have been revealed through experiments in the comparatively new science of animal psychology. Like the older sciences, it has set up its laboratories, developed its special apparatus, and perfected its technique of measurement. It has already discovered more remarkable facts about the behavior of the lower animals than the field naturalist ever dreamed of, writes Prescott Lecky in the August Popular Science Monthly.

For example, Prof. Norman Triplett, of the Kansas State Normal School, was wondering not long ago whether a fish, an animal well down toward the bottom of the evolutionary scale, could learn to control its natural desire to dine upon small minnows. Two perch were placed in a glass tank and permitted to feed on minnows for several months. Then a glass partition was slipped in, dividing the tank in two. On one side, perch; on the other side, minnows. Glass between. Smack! As the perch rushed forward they collided with the barrier full force. Undaunted they returned to the attack and butted their heads again.

The experiment was repeated every day for a month. In the meantime the fish were fed with angelfish. Gradually they lessened their attacks, and at last gave up altogether their attempts to reach the minnows. It was then that Professor Triplett gave them a real test. He removed the partition and the perch, no longer interested in the minnows, remained peacefully on their own side, while the minnows crossed over and joined them. They swam together in peace.

Just prior to this experiment, a famous European biologist had asserted that fish could learn nothing. Now, though, it is known that all animals, even the one-celled variety, can alter their behavior to some extent, even though the change may not last permanently.

FEDERATION

Of Women's Clubs Appeals To Campers.

Spare wild flowers, shrubs and trees; they have made the place pleasant for you—leave them for others to enjoy. Don't make a campfire in the leaves or rotten wood or against a log where it may spread. Don't make a fire too close to a tree. Don't toss away burning matches or tobacco. Always scrape (toward the fire) a trench around your campfire, down to dirt. Always leave a clean camp and a dead fire.

Some fires come from lightning and some from unpreventable causes; but about 90 per cent or more are from sheer carelessness.

WOODCHOP-
PER'S YARN

After sawing through a large cedar tree stump near Revelstoke, B. C., two ranchers were amazed to discover that they had decapitated a bear. Evidence showed that bruin had entered there through a hole at the roots of the tree. Scratching the rotting wood inside, the animal released enough chips to block the hole and cut off his air supply. The body was in a rolled-up posture, suggesting that he had been attempting to turn when he died through suffocation.

LOCAL ELKS AGAIN LOW AT SHOOT

J. C. Rader Turns In Best Scores
of Circleville Men.

Circleville Elks' Lodge trap-shooting outfit again failed to land in the money in yesterday's final events at the Elks' National trapshoot in Cincinnati.

Among the "outsiders," the Ohio picked team won the state team title and C. L. Schwartz, of Kenton, took the handicap. The outstanding all round performer of the meet was R. R. Stevenson, of Dayton, while W. H. Hall, of Maysville, Kentucky, turned in the longest run, breaking 206 consecutive targets.

Circleville men shot as follows in the 16 yard singles in 100 attempts: S. D. Geddes, 91; Robert Immell, 93; Felix R. Caldwell, 96; O. L. Cartright, 95; J. C. Rader, 97.

In the National Handicap the following scores were turned in: S. D. Geddes, 93; O. L. Cartright, 94; J. C. Rader, 94; R. L. Immell, 86; F. R. Caldwell, 79.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Lodge won the lodge team championship of the meet; R. R. Stevenson the singles; J. D. Claypool, of Kenton, the doubles; Ohio the state team title and C. R. Schwartz, the handicap.

Cash prizes in the tournament to $5,000 while many beautiful trophies were also awarded.

BED-ROOM CARS

Have Displaced the Old Pullman
Berths On Several Railroad Lines.

Columbus, July 14.—(UP.)—The Pullman berth is soon to be a thing of the past, according to prediction of railroad officials here.

The last minute bed-room car which has just been placed into use on several railroad lines is an innovation which is taking the place of the upper and lower.

All the comforts of home are found in the new de-luxe Pullman car bedrooms, including a real bed, with a deep box spring, thick comfortable mattress and a silk spread; a comfortable upholstered chair, which conceals a toilet; a lavatory with hot and cold running water; a dental faucet which disappears when not in use; a thermos bottle and glass; rack for writing paper and a drop-table.

The little two by four sleeping shelf will pass completely out of existence when the new bed-room car is perfected.

The only drawback to popular use of the bed-room car at once is the fact that it is not convenient for travel in the day time. Pullman engineers are working on a plan to make the bed fold away and enable the room to be turned into a sitting room during the day.

Until that time, the new Pullman's are being used mainly for overnight runs. On the de-luxe trains, a lounge car is attached for use during the day.

Polishing Surfaces

"Grinding" is a general term. "Lapping" is a method of grinding interior and exterior surfaces in a lathe by friction of lead cylinders or clamps supplied with oil and a fine abrasive powder. The method is used where it is necessary to obtain an exceedingly smooth and polished surface, as in the manufacture of ordnance.

HINDENBURG

Serves the German Republic
Well.

When General Paul von Hindenburg was elected President of Germany a little over two years ago there were many who believed that it heralded a Hohenzollern restoration, according to John Clayton in an article in this week's Liberty. "Instead," writes the author, "Hindenburg has proved the strongest prop of the republic. In his official capacity he has cut himself off from monarchist organizations and denied them the use of his signature in collecting funds. He has sworn a soldier's path to support the constitution of the republic, and Germany, which believed him when he took it, believes him doubly today, after a proving time of more than two years.

Von Hindenburg, who is eighty years old, realizes his age. He was elected for a seven-year term of office. If God is good to him, he may live through his term, but a second term is out of the question. So Hindenburg is hampered in no way by the desire for further political honors; nor does he find it necessary to regard the will of a fickle party committee which might hold his political future in its hands.

"The President has been one of the biggest factors in restoring foreign confidence in Germany's future. He still has nearly five years before him, during which time the reconstruction should be complete."

Tree Makes Starch
In the course of a day, an average tree manufacturer some 20 pounds of starch.

Tree Comes to Meet Farmer at the Barn

Pomeroy, Ohio.—Alonso Kesterson has never believed in fairies, but now—well, consider the evidence:

Mr. Kesterson, who is past the age of believing in fairies, owns a farm just outside Pomeroy. As is a habit of farms in that vicinity, it runs mostly up and down.

Just back of the house the Kesterson farm turns sharply upward for several hundred feet. Three hundred feet up this steep clay slope stood an apple tree. Its apples were of a variety particularly prized by Mr. Kesterson and he bemoaned their inaccessibility.

"I wish that old tree was down in the barn lot," he confided to his grandson the other morning. "I like them apples special and it's gittin' too hard to climb up there."

A few minutes later the two heard a rumble, a clatter and a crackling of timbers; they turned to behold the apple tree, its roots still buried in a gigantic clod of earth fifteen or twenty feet in diameter, settling itself in the barnyard. A bare slippery expanse of clay on the hillside revealed its path. The slippery clay, softened by heavy rains, had staged a landslide for the apparent benefit of Mr. Kesterson.

The tree crashed through a fence and demolished a shed. It was in bloom at the time and now is preparing, Mr. Kesterson said, to bear a crop of apples.

STAGGERING FIRE LOSSES IN COUNTRY

Greatest Thrift Lesson is to Decide to Put a Stop to This Useless Waste.

It is no doubt true that a great amount of time, energy and money are expended unwisely or ill-advisedly in efforts to bring about improved conditions in this country. There are activities which are thoroly laudable in their objectives, but too visionary ever to result in success. On the other hand, there are many great problems pressing for solution—many conditions demanding improvement, to which not enough public attention is given.

High in the list of the latter is the problem of meeting our growing losses of life and property thru fire. Recently compiled figures show, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, that 15,000 lives and $650,548,624 worth of property was the tribute paid by this country last year to the fire fiend. It would seem that this great loss of human life would alone be sufficient to arouse us to greater efforts of fire prevention. It is hard to imagine a nation such as ours willing to lay this great human sacrifice upon the altars of Carelessness and Indifference.

The nation would be shocked into swift and determined action by similar losses of life in any other way.

If it were possible to assemble in one colossal pile all the buildings erected last year in the great cities of Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, San Francisco, Washington and Boston and touch a match to them so that they would blaze to heaven in a greater bonfire than the world has even known, we would have a spectacular reproduction of our nation's fire losses for the year, 1926.

If all the buildings erected in the United States last year could be placed on one long thoroughfare and then a gigantic hand were to apply the torch to every tenth building facing on this highway, we would have reproduction of our annual fire losses.

Let us remember that possibly 75 per cent of this destruction of life and property is due to carelessness. It is a form of national thriftlessness. It is a tax which we as a nation choose to impose upon ourselves thru sheer lack of care. One of our greatest thrift lessons will have been learned when we decide as a nation of people to put a stop to our preventable fire losses.

MISSIONARIES RETURNED TO UNITED STATES

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sauer Spent Six Years in Korea--Lived Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sauer, formerly of this city, are expected to arrive in Chillicothe today for a visit with relatives, after a stay of six years in Korea, where they have been serving as missionaries for the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Sauer will be remembered by Circleville people as having been superintendent of the Washington township public schools for two years. Mrs. Sauer, who was Miss Marguerite Suttles, at the time was teacher of domestic science in the same schools. They were married while teaching here. Both were very active in church work in this city and will receive a glad welcome when they return here for a visit.

Both are graduates of Ohio Wesleyan university and are well known among the teachers of the state. Mr. Sauer served with the 83d division during the World war.

While in Korea he wrote a book, "Korean for Beginners" which received great praise from the press of that country.

The Sauers are bringing with them their two young sons, both of whom were born in Seoul, Korea.

NELSON SMITH DROWNED NEAR NELSONVILLE

Struck With Cramp While Bathing Near Meal Time --Burial at Chillicothe.

Nelson Smith, salesman for the Spetnagel Hardware company and son of Mrs. Mary Smith, 398 Chestnut street, Chillicothe, was drowned in a stream near Nelsonville Wednesday evening with an attack of cramps while in bathing.

Smith was going over the Athens territory substituting for the regular salesman who was on vacation. According to his itinerary, he was to stay overnight at Athens. Evidently he decided to go to Nelsonville where his brother, Jess D. Smith, lives, and spend the night there.

At Nelsonville, Smith and his brother's wife and two children decided to go bathing after supper. From the meager information received concerning the accident, it was impossible to learn the name of the stream.

The brother's theory is that Smith got a cramp from going in swimming too close to meal time. It is understood that the older daughter of Mrs. Jess Smith undertook to save her uncle but her efforts were futile. The body was recovered by a searching party.

Smith had been with the Spetnagel Hardware company for about four years and a half and was a respected and trusted employee. He was a member of the United Commercial Travelers and was affiliated with the First Presbyterian church.

The mother of this city, and the brother, of Nelsonville, survive. The remains were brought to Chillicothe for burial.—News Advertiser.

Device Makes It Easy to Match Any Color

It is now possible to match colors by wire or radio. A new apparatus has been invented at Massachusetts Institute of Technology by which this process can be carried out so that in the manufacture of textiles or other colored products, exact reproductions of any shade can be made without possibility of visual error. Thus control of color by industries advances from dependence upon the human eye. A color specimen in a holder is placed close to a high-power electric lamp. Light is alternately reflected from it and from a block of magnesium carbonate, the whitest substance in the world. The variation of reflection from these two surfaces is registered by a photo-electric cell and transmitted in electric impulses either by wire or radio.

Watch Your Woolens!

With the summer season, the moth miller is abroad hunting a good place to lay her eggs. She prefers woolens as a good place to deposit her eggs, for there will be good feeding for her young.

Keep the cover on your upholstered furniture, brushed at least once each week, remove all cushions, and use your electric cleaner now and then. DO NOT COVER YOUR FURNITURE WITH COVERS. The young moth will crawl thru the covering and destroy your coverings before you are aware of their presence.

Place your woolen clothing and blankets in a moth-proof chest and cease to worry. We have just received a large shipment of "Treasure Chests" lined inside with red cedar, with walnut on the outside. They are beautifully finished and will add greatly to the beauty of the room, as well as serve as a protection to your clothing.
